New Sennheiser Series of Sound Academy Wireless Masterclasses

Sennheiser announces the launch of new Sound Academy workshops, starting in June, at their new UK office in Marlow, Buckinghamshire. Marcus Blight, the UK's Technical Applications Engineer at Sennheiser, will lead these sessions. The comprehensive program delves into the science and application of wireless audio, equipping participants with essential knowledge and expertise. Targeted at audio engineers, sound designers, live event professionals, RF technicians, installers, and system integrators, these masterclasses offer hands-on experience with the latest wireless technologies from industry experts.

“We’re pleased to bring new dates for our Sound Academy Wireless Masterclasses, where attendees will gain practical skills through interactive sessions, participate in dedicated Q&A sessions, and network with fellow professionals, all while enhancing their wireless audio expertise,” says Blight.
