In the BDM Bundle, you will find three distinct plugins, inspired by three legendary amplifiers. Each plugin in the bundle offers a slice of history, channeling iconic tones from the 1970s to the present day.

This amp carries the raw spirit of punk rock from the '90s and early 2000s. Pulled straight from the studio of a legendary Swedish band, its battle-worn tolex tells a story. Evolving through countless mods and chaotic repairs, this amp shaped punk. In more recent times, it has become one of the key workhorse amps at Fascination Street Studios. It delivers everything from ballsy crunch to crushing, raw distortion. To top it off, the plugin includes a second channel that recreates the famous jump cable method. Add two matched cabs, a beautiful comfort reverb and you will get the tone you need in seconds. Emerging from the depths of the 80s, this is potentially the most iconic amp of all time. However, the Badboy is not just any old 800. With military-grade 6550 tubes and a custom 140-watt transformer from Finland, this amp is literally bursting with character, tone, and depth.

Toggle the effects on and you've got a dialed-in lead tone with delay and reverb – perfect for shredding your next solo. The BDM 800 Badboy is truly the ultimate all-rounder – no wonder it's been a guitar-tone staple for the last 40 years! Four channels, two matched cabs, a pedal boost, and reverb – this might be the most versatile Ampknob ever released. The BDM 410 JVH, inspired by the sound of contemporary gold-plated amps, encompasses the tone of this iconic British company in the 21st century. The amp we captured is a tried and true tone monster – used extensively on Opeth's Watershed. Offering pristine cleans to buttery leads and everything in between. BDM 410 JVH is your new go-to for modern British guitar tones.

The Ampknob BDM plugins cost $49 each or $98 for all three. The plugins are available immediately from the Bogren Digital store and authorized dealers.
